Microsoft to patch 17-year-old computer bug

The bug dates from the days of Windows NT 3.1

A 17-year-old bug in Windows will be patched by Microsoft in its latest security update.

The February update for Windows will close the loophole that dates from the time of the DOS operating system.

First appearing in Windows NT 3.1, the vulnerability has been carried over into almost every version of Windows that has appeared since.

The monthly security update will also tackle a further 25 holes in Windows, five of which are rated as "critical".

Home hijack

The ancient bug was discovered by Google security researcher Tavis Ormandy in January 2010 and involves a utility that allows newer versions of Windows to run very old programs.

Mr Ormandy has found a way to exploit this utility in Windows XP, Windows Server 2003 and 2008 as well as Windows Vista and Windows 7.

The patch for this vulnerability will appear in the February security update. Five of the vulnerabilities being patched at the same time allow attackers to effectively hijack a Windows PC and run their own programs on it.

As well as fixing holes in many versions of Windows, the update also tackles bugs in Office XP, Office 2003 and Office 2004 for Apple Macintosh machines.

The bumper update is not the largest that Microsoft has ever released. The security update for October 2009 tackled a total of 34 vulnerabilities. Eight of those updates were rated as critical - the highest level.

In January 2010, Microsoft released an "out of band" patch for a serious vulnerability in Internet Explorer that was being exploited online. The vulnerability was also thought to be the one used to attack Google in China.

Following the attack on Google, many other cyber criminals started seeking ways to exploit the loophole.

Also this week, a security researcher has reported the discovery of a vulnerability in Internet Explorer that allows attackers to view the files held on a victim's machine.

Microsoft has issued a security bulletin about the problem and aims to tackle it at a future date. At the moment there is no evidence that this latest find is being actively exploited online.

Australia romp to easy win over West Indies in Adelaide

Pace bowler Doug Bollinger took 4-28 as Australia trounced West Indies by eight wickets in the second one-day international in Adelaide.

The tourists were bowled out for 170 in 39.4 overs after slumping to 16-4 at the start of their innings, Dwayne Smith top-scoring with 43.

Shane Watson got Australia off to a good start in reply with 53 from 50 balls before being caught behind.

Captain Ricky Ponting saw them home with an unbeaten 57 off 55 balls.

The Windies have now occupied the crease for just 74 of a possible 100 overs in the first two matches of the series after being dismissed for 143 in the first one-dayer in Melbourne.

Bollinger did the early damage for Australia with an opening spell of 3-9 off five overs. Clint McKay finished with 2-33 while Mitchell Johnson, Nathan Hauritz and Watson were the other wicket-takers.

The tourists were immediately on the back foot when captain Chris Gayle was dismissed for a first-ball duck after shuffling across the crease to a Bollinger delivery.

The wickets of Travis Dowlin, Runako Morton and Lendl Simmons left the visitors in all sorts of trouble.

Denesh Ramdin and Narsingh Deonarine's 46-run partnership and Kieron Pollard and Smith's 37-run stand added some respectability to the scoreboard but the wickets kept falling at the wrong time.

Bollinger took four wickets as Australia beat the Windies

Smith and Ravi Rampaul then decided aggression was the best way to counteract the Australians' pressure and for a while their approach worked.

A straight six from Smith off McKay was the highlight of the innings while Rampaul was swinging hard during his 18 off 22 balls.

But a slight hesitation in the running between wickets saw Ponting run out Rampaul and the next ball Smith was brilliantly caught by Mike Hussey.

In response, Australia needed just 26.3 overs to reach their target and go two up in the series, Watson and Ponting both hitting two sixes as the hosts scored at more than a run a ball.

The only downside for Australia was a poor attendance for the second successive game but Bollinger afterwards insisted that 50-over cricket remained a viable format.

"You've got to look next year with the Ashes, every game will be sold out, and no-one will have a problem then. We are just enjoying the 50-over format at the moment and having a great time, he said.

19th February 1979: Plane crash in Vieux Fort

A Quebec 707 jet liner crash landed at Hewanorra International Airport about 1:30 pm. Two of the 140 passengers on board the aircraft were injured and were treated at St. Jude's Hospital. Others were treated for shock.

According to Airport Services, the nose wheel of the plane crashed on the runway and skidded some 200 yards away from the intersection to the parking apron. This forced the cancellation of flights into Hewanorra temporarily.

One of the flights cancelled was that of a Pegasus Aircraft with a group of British Parliamentarians who were due to arrive for the independence celebrations.

- The Education Officer and Representatives of the Press

The school was constructed with funds made available by the British Government under the Colonial Development and Welfare Programme in 1955/1960 Act at the cost of £18,000.

The school was built to accommodate 50 boys, age 11-16. The staff included Head Master, Matron and one Assistant Master.

In addition to formal education, the boys were taught tailoring and handicraft. The period of tuition was approximately three years. 18 acres of land were attached to the school and agricultural activities were pursued with the view of making the school self supporting. After-care was undertaken by the probation Officer whose duty it was to rehabilitate the boys discharged from the school.
