DEPARTMENT OF SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

INVITATION TO TENDER

GEF 6 - Integrated Ecosystems Management and Restoration of Forests in the South East Coast Project

INVITATION

The Government of Saint Lucia, through the Department of Sustainable Development (Ministry of Education, Innovation, Gender Relations and Sustainable Development), is inviting consultants to submit tenders for a consultancy to undertake a detailed socio-economic profile of the communities in the South East Coast to provide agribusiness support services.

Project Location

Saint Lucia, with particular focus on the South East Coast, from Mandele Point in Dennery to Laborie.

TERMS OF REFERENCE

1.0 BACKGROUND

1.1 Integrated Ecosystem Management and Restoration of Forests on the South East Coast of Saint Lucia project is aimed at developing ecosystems management systems and practices, restoring productive landscapes and enabling sustainable socio-economic development by creating avenues for sustainable livelihood in the communities in the South East Coast region of the island. The main problem that the project seeks to address is the lack of integrated protection hectares and sustainable management of ecosystems. This area encompasses some of the island's dry forest ecosystems, namely, the Mandele Dry Forest, which is critical to the continued survival of some of its threatened endemic species and sub-species such as the White-Breasted Thrasher, Saint Lucia Oriole, Saint Lucia Black Finch, the Saint Lucia Pewee, the Antillean Euphonia, Bridled quail dove, Grey Trembler, three hummingbird species and possibly the Rufous Nightjar (Bird Life International, 2018). Other non- bird biodiversity that can be found in this area are the agouti, the boa constrictor and the fer-de-lance. Point Sables, another key biodiversity area found in the South East Coast is approximately 774 hectares and is home to at least thirty-two bird species (cite Robert L Norton 1989), five endemic species of herpetofauna, two of which are only found in Saint Lucia; they are The Saint Lucia racer and the Saint Lucia whiptail.

1.2 Main threats to these existing ecosystems include natural disasters, charcoal production, mining, habitat modification and destruction. The island's vulnerability to natural disasters such as hurricanes and storms, may have catastrophic effects on the natural resources of the area. Charcoal production by the Aupicon Charcoal production Group contributes to increases in emissions of greenhouse gases and the most commonly stated impact is deforestation.

1.3 Mining and quarrying activities result in the discharge of chemicals and industrial waste into the environment. Lastly, habitat change is occurring at a rapid rate and is expected to increase even further in the future with the projected increases in hotels, housing, infrastructure and other developments that may negatively impact dry forest areas.

1.4 The application and expansion of these interventions in the South East Coast, particularly with regard to long-term sustainability, have been impeded by inadequacies within the wider policy and institutional environments that do not adequately allow for mainstreaming of these interventions beyond the realm of “project-driven, site-specific” actions. Further, the mechanisms for the implementation of appropriate and “fit-to-purpose” sustainable land and water management, the use of renewable energy technologies and biodiversity conservation interventions, have remained outside of traditional government programmes and budgets and as a result, these remain some areas of key concern in the South East Coast:

1.4.1 Land Use Planning: Absence of planned, guided and managed development of all types (residential, agricultural, touristic and access) which takes into account ecosystems goods and services.

1.4.2 Continuity: Lack of follow up or financing for completed biodiversity assessment and priority setting exercises.

1.4.3 Sustainable replacements: Lack of sustainable options to reduce pressures on ecosystem services and goods.

1.5 Under its sixth replenishment funding cycle (GEF6), the Global Environment Facility provided funding to the Government of Saint Lucia, through the Department of Sustainable Development, as project Executing Agency, to implement a project entitled ‘Integrated Ecosystems Management and Restoration of Forests of the South East Coast’, which focuses on Land use planning; Safeguarding of key areas; Continuity and Sustainable replacements. The United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) is the project Implementing Agency. The project aims to address these concerns in three distinct components with an accompanying overarching Project Management and Monitoring and Evaluation (M&E) system:

Component 1: Ecosystem Management

Component 2: Rehabilitated Landscapes

Component 3: Sustainable Livelihoods

Under the sustainable livelihoods component, one of the areas of intervention is that of providing Renewable Energy technologies to groups involved in agro processing to increase efficiency in the production process. Thus, a comprehensive and detailed gender responsive socio-economic profile for south east coast communities, to assist with the identification and selection of projects where Renewable Energy technologies will be utilized, is required. These profiles will also be utilized to identify other groups and agri-businesses that can be selected for other initiatives under the project in the Sustainable Livelihoods component, including women, marginalized and vulnerable groups.

1.6 Overall, the GEF intervention will build on existing legal framework to develop appropriate supporting regulations and guidelines, which integrate environmental sensitivities, priorities and sustainable management options in forest, coastal and marine ecosystems. Agro-processing is a nascent industry in the South East Coast. Energy use for drying and electricity is incumbent in cocoa, broom making and sea moss initiatives. However, the cost of energy is one of the limiting factors in the development of the industry, and existing technologies that use hydrocarbons to generate electricity and heat contribute to increasing carbon emissions. Charcoal farming and broom making, as currently practiced, are extractive industries that degrade lands and habitat for rare and endangered species and other biodiversity. Transforming these industries from extractive to sustainable (e.g. fuel wood and tree crop planting and management) and thereby improving practices associated with this livelihood, is important in combating land degradation. Without the GEF intervention, the high biodiversity, priority forest, and marine areas of the South East Coast would continue to be degraded and imperiled by development initiatives, which, fail to take into account local, national, and global environment considerations.

2.0 OBJECTIVE, PURPOSE & EXPECTED RESULTS OF CONSULTANCY
